

Unitel

In business since 2001, Unitel is the largest mobile operator in Angola. It managed to become the first choice for Angolans and took the lead in the market during its first year of existence. It has seven million customers in the country.

Its number of customers now exceeds the two digit mark, thanks to the innovative services it introduced to the market and the continuous expansion in mobile coverage, which allows ever more customers to access its products and services, while at the same time expanding Angolans' access to mobile and telecommunications services.

Engexpor has accompanied Unitel during the expansion of its network of stores in Angola, and has carried out project and works management at several of its units in the country.
