New housing reference in Lisbon combines renovation of a neoclassical building with new construction

In the Estrela neighbourhood, a new private condominium is taking shape, resulting from the combination of the recovery of an existing structure, in a neoclassical style, with the construction of new residential buildings, united around a typically Portuguese central courtyard.

Villa Infante, which stands out for its imposing architectural façade, brings to one of the capital's most upscale neighbourhoods 87 new apartments with balconies, terraces, and gardens.

The communal living spaces with gardens, children's playground, and gym for the exclusive use of its residents encircle the central courtyard, defining the character of the condominium.

The interiors, which accommodate T1 to T4 duplex apartments, make the most of Lisbon's light through the large windows that look out over the green outdoor spaces or the city stretching between the hill and the river.

In this new residential project, Avenue once again entrusts Engexpor with the management and supervision of the work.
